Corpus Acknowledgements We would like to acknowledge the assistance of the many hundreds of individuals and companies who have kindly given permission for copyright material to be used in the Bank of English. The written sources include many national and regional newspapers in Britain and overseas; magazine and periodical publishers; and book publishers in Britain, the United States and Australia. Extensive spoken data has been provided by radio and television broadcasting companies; research workers at many universities and other institutions; and numerous individual contributors. We are grateful to them all.

Structure of Spanish entries

Headwords and compound nouns are displayed in bold. Examples and phrases are displayed in bold and grey type, or in bold and blue on colour screens.

A change in part of speech is indicated by a ■ symbol:

agente

■ smf (=representante) agent; (=policía) policeman/policewoman; agente comercial business agent; agente de bolsa stockbroker; agente de seguros insurance agent; agente de tránsito (Arg, Méx) traffic policeman/policewoman; agente literario literary agent; agente secreto secret agent; agentes sociales social partners (employers and unions)

■ sm (Quím) agent

Cross-references to verb conjugation tables occur at the beginning of a verb entry, set off by slashes . Set structures and expressions are preceded by a ▶ symbol:

hacer /2r/ ...

▶ hacer de (Teat) to play the part of; hacer de malo to play the villain

▶ hacer por (=intentar) haz por verlo si puedes try to get around to seeing him if you can

Asterisks are used to indicate the usage register of a particular word or sense as follows:

(*) = informal register

() = slang or very informal

() = offensive

abuelo, -a sm/f

1 (=pariente) grandfather/grandmother; mis abuelos my grandparents; MODISMO ¡cuéntaselo a tu abuela! who are you trying to kid?*, pull the other one! (*Brit); MODISMO no necesitar o tener abuela (*Esp) to blow one's own trumpet; MODISMO (éramos pocos) y parió la abuela and that was the last straw, and that was all we needed

Spanish Pronunciation

The pronunciation of Spanish is generally regular and the notes below should be sufficient to enable an English speaker to read most Spanish words. Because of this, the only pronunciations shown on the Spanish-English side of the dictionary are those of foreign words or other words which are pronounced in a way you would not expect. Pronunciations, where shown, are transcribed using the International Phonetic Alphabet, which is explained below. Stress in Spanish words falls on the second last syllable if the word ends in a vowel, n or s; if a word ends in a consonant the last syllable is stressed. If the stress falls anywhere else in the word, this is shown by an acute accent over the stressed vowel.

Vowels and diphthongs

Spanish vowels are always pronounced clearly and are not relaxed in unstressed syllables as in English.

a [a]: Between English a as in pat and u as in hut
  pata, amara

e [e]: Similar to English e as in set me, pelo, sangre

ACADEMIA

In Spain academias are private schools catering for students of all ages and levels outside normal school and working hours. Some specialize in particular skills such as computing, languages and music while others offer extra tuition in core school subjects and syllabuses. For people hoping to do well enough in the oposiciones to get a post in the public sector, there are academias offering special preparatory courses for these notoriously difficult competitive examinations.

APELLIDO

In the Spanish-speaking world most people use two apellidos, the first being their father's first surname, and the second their mother's first surname: e.g. the surname of the children of Juan García López, married to Carmen Pérez Rodríguez would be García Pérez. Married women can either use the surnames they were born with or add their husband's first surname to theirs; so e.g. Carmen Pérez Rodríguez could also be known as Carmen Pérez de García or Carmen Pérez Rodríguez de García. In this particular case she could also be referred to as la señora de García. However, most women continue to use their own surnames.

ARPILLERA

Arpilleras is the term used for the colourful pictures made in many parts of Latin America by appliquéing scraps of fabric onto a hessian backing. During the Pinochet dictatorship in Chile they became politically significant since working-class women used them to depict the reality of life under military rule. As these arpilleras escaped the scrutiny of the male-dominated regime, they provided women with a means of recording events as well as obtaining income from abroad.

CAMINO DE SANTIAGO

The Camino de Santiago is a medieval pilgrim route stretching from the Pyrenees to Santiago de Compostela in northwest Spain, where tradition has it that the body of Saint James the Apostle (Spain's patron saint) is buried. Those who had made the long, dangerous journey returned proudly wearing on their hat or cloak the venera or concha (scallop shell) traditionally associated with this pilgrimage - Saint James' body had reportedly been found covered in scallops.

CARNAVAL

Carnaval is the traditional period of fun, feasting and partying that precedes the start of Lent (Cuaresma). The most important day is probably Shrove Tuesday (Martes de Carnaval), but throughout Carnaval there are fancy-dress parties, parades and firework displays. In some places in Spain, the changeover from Carnaval to Lent on Ash Wednesday is marked by the Entierro de la Sardina. This is a grotesque funeral parade in which the symbolic cardboard figure of a sardine is marched through the streets and finally ceremonially burnt or buried.

CARPA

In Mexico a carpa is a travelling show held under a big top. Originating in the nationalistic aftermath of the Mexican revolution, carpas toured agricultural communities and mining towns offering a menu of satire, slapstick humour, dramatic sketches and humorous monologues, as well as acrobatics, tightrope walking and other circus entertainments. It was in the carpa that the Mexican comic character, Cantinflas, started life.

CASTELLANO

In the Spanish-speaking world castellano rather than español is a very common term for the Spanish language. Under the Spanish Constitution castellano is Spain's official language, but in some of the Comunidades Autónomas it shares official status with another language. Use of one or other term will depend on where the speaker is from, and where they place themselves in the linguistic debate.

CAVA

A sparkling white or occasionally rosé Spanish wine, cava is produced mainly in the Penedés region using the traditional techniques developed in Champagne, France. To maintain the constant temperature important to the process, the wine is stored and fermented in cellars or cavas, hence the name.

CHICHA

Chicha is a strong alcoholic drink made from fermented maize and produced in Peru, where it is associated with ceremonial and ritual occasions. It is now an element of what is known as chicha culture, a dynamic blend of traditional Indian and modern imported styles and fashions created out of the migration of the rural poor to major cities. Chicha music has become the most popular music in Peru. It combines the traditional Andean huayno with tropical, Afro-Hispanic music and electronic instruments.

COMUNIDAD AUTÓNOMA

In Spain the comunidades autónomas are any of the 19 administrative regions consisting of one or more provinces and having political powers devolved from Madrid, as stipulated by the 1978 Constitution. They have their own democratically elected parliaments, form their own cabinets and legislate and execute policies in certain areas such as housing, infrastructure, health and education, though Madrid still retains jurisdiction for all matters affecting the country as a whole, such as defence, foreign affairs and justice. The Comunidades Autónomas include: Andalucía, Cataluña, Galicia and País Vasco.

CORRIDO

Corridos are Mexican ballads, usually sung by a solo voice and accompanied on the guitar. Traditionally they were used to narrate important events to semi-literate communities, and favourite themes include the Mexican Revolution and Mexican migration to the USA. The corrido is similar in form to the Spanish romance from which it derives, but deals with the common people's struggle for justice, rather than the chivalrous deeds of the aristocracy.

LOS DESAPARECIDOS

Los desaparecidos is the name given to those who disappeared during the military dictatorships in the Southern Cone in the 1970s. Thousands of people were taken from their homes, schools and places of work and never seen again. Families of the victims joined forces to form pressure groups like Argentina's Madres y Abuelas de la Plaza de Mayo, but although some managed to identify and recover the bodies of their relatives, the perpetrators were rarely brought to justice.

DOCUMENTO NACIONAL DE IDENTIDAD

The Spanish Documento Nacional de Identidad is a laminated plastic ID card which is renewable every 5 or 10 years in most cases, depending on the age of the holder. All Spanish nationals over the age of 14 are required to carry this card, which has their photo and personal details, at all times. As a legal document it is commonly used as proof of identity and it can be used instead of a passport for travelling around the EU. In Spain it is commonly known as the DNI, or else the carnet (de identidad). In Latin America a similar card is called the cédula (de identidad).

An entremés is a short farce used as an entertaining interval between the first and second act of a comedia. It is thought that the entremés (derived from the Italian intermezzo) was first performed on the Spanish stage in the 16th century and derives from the influential Italian Commedia dell'Arte. Often using slapstick, stock characters and situations, entremeses had enormous audience appeal and were written by such distinguished writers as Miguel de Cervantes.

ESPERPENTO

Esperpento is a type of theatre developed by Ramón del Valle-Inclán (1869-1936) focusing on characters whose physical and psychological characteristics have been deliberately deformed and warped to the point where they become grotesque caricatures. Valle-Inclán used this esperpento as a vehicle for social and political satire.

EUSKERA

Spoken by over half a million people in the Western Pyrenees, Basque, which is a non-Indo-European language, has been one of Spain's lenguas cooficiales (along with catalán and gallego) since 1982. Under Franco its use was prohibited in the media, but it began to experience a revival in the 1950s through semi-clandestine Basque-language schools called ikastolas. Nowadays there is Basque-language radio and television, and under the autonomous government the teaching of the language has become a cornerstone of educational policy.

FALANGE ESPAÑOLA

Founded in 1933 by José Antonio Primo de Rivera, son of the dictator Miguel Primo de Rivera, the Falange Española was a sort of paramilitary fascist party. It grew rapidly in the early months of the Spanish Civil War, particularly after its leader was executed by the Republicans. Franco later merged the Falange with the Carlistas to form the Falange Española Tradicionalista de las Juntas de Ofensiva Nacional-Sindicalista. After the Civil War, the FET de las JONS was the only legally political party permitted in Franco's Spain.

Fallas sfpl Valencian celebration of the feast of St Joseph;
FALLAS

In the week of March 19 (the feast of San José), Valencia honours its patron saint with a spectacular fiesta called las Fallas. Fallas is the name given to the huge papier-mâché, cardboard and wooden sculptures depicting politicians and other well-known public figures which, amidst a deafening display of fireworks, are put on bonfires and set alight by members of competing groups, or falleros, who will have spent the previous year creating and building them. Only the sculpture which is voted best escapes the flames.
